THE OLD FARMER'S ELEGY. On a green grassy knott, by the banks of the brook That so long and so often has watered his flock, That so long and so bled has watered his nock. The old farmer rests in his long and last sleep, While the waters a low lisping lullaby keep: He has ploughed his last furrow, has reaped his last grain, Yo morn shall awake him to labor again.

The blue-bird sings sweet in the gay maple bough, its warblings oft cheered him while holding the plough; And the robbins above him hop light on the mould For he fed them with crumbs when the season was cold

You tree that with fragrance is filling the air, So rich with its blossoms, so thrifty and fair, By his own hand was planted, and well did he say It would live when its planter had mouldered away. There's the well that he dug, with its waters so cold,

With its wet dripping bucket so mossy and old, No more from its depths by the patriarch drawn, For the pitcher is broken—the old man is gone.

And the seat where he sat by his own cottage door, In the still summer eves when his labors were o'er, With his eyes on the moon and his tipe in his hand, Dispensing his truths like a sage of the land.

'Twas a gloom giving day when the old farmer died; The stout hearted mourned, the affectionate cried : nd the prayers of the just for his rest did ascend, For they all lost a Brother, a Man

For upright and honest the old farmer was; His God he revered, he respected the laws; Though fameless he lived, he has gone where his worth Will outshine, like pure gold, all the dross of this earth. He has ploughed his last furrow, has reaped his last grain, No morn shall awake him to labor again.

SOUTHERN READER, FOR SCHOOLS. We commend to the especial consideration of teachers, and to the parents and guardians of children, a new work with the above title, about to be published by the Rev. Mr. Folker. We have on many occasions given the labors of our pen to the encouragement of enterprises of this nature; and regard this as an exceedingly favorable juncture for still pressing the subject. Mr. Bahcock began the laudable busines of making a selection, which has done much good, and received wide, but not undeserved praise. Mr. Folker has been, for a long period, connected with educational establishments, and brings to the matter all the judgment and experience which might be supposed necessary for its prefection. The South has so long and so seriously suffered from the want of home trade, or home education, a home every thing, that the evil is now genetally acknowledged. The sentiment of a country ought to be domestic; but it will not be so, if the youth of that country is trained by foreign systems and in foreign schools. We are assonished in looking at catalogues of distant colleges to see the numbar of Southern youth entered as students. We say it, respectfully, but decidedly, it is a fatal error, and a deep wrong to the cause of the South. It is not less culpable, to tolerate books in our schools, prepared by professed enemies of the South, with the very view of prejudicing our children against out institutions. This is the sin, for it is no less, which Mr. Folker proposes to remedy. He has performed the work of selection, and the arrangement, with admirable taste. We would not leave his reward to individuals. The State is deeply concerned, and the State should act. We trust His Excellency the Governor, in carrying out his most valuable efforts in the cause of Education, will make this matter a subject of a special message. The School Convention, originating in his suggestion, has effected fine results and the promotion of this measure will still further strengthen his just claim to the gratitude of the coun-For Mr. Folker himself, we earnestly hope he will reap rick rewards. They cannot be too extravagant, for the valuable service he has rendered the Chas. News. South in his meritorious work.

THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW. If there is any seri ous intention on the part of the public, either black or white, to disobey this law, the result is easily seen. Bloodshed and civil war will be the consequence, for they may rest assured that it will be enforced whenever occasion requires it; and, if necessary, the whole swarm of white fanatics, and their dupes, the colored people, will be exterminated by the guns of our military. Of this they have had an earnest, in the proceedings which recently took place in the city of Detroit, where several military companies were ordered out to support the civil authorities in the arrest of a fugitive slave. The same thing would take place here if the occasion required it. This, the colored people and the fanatical whites may rest assured of, and so soon as they force that issue on the public, so soon will a war of extermination against the blacks be commenced, the end of which no one can see. This Union is not to be torn asunder by misplaced philan-throphy, or the fanaticism of Seward, or any demagogue like him, and the attempt will be met with an opposition of a character that perhaps such disorganizers may not dream of. If the issue of the Union or bloodshed is forced on the people, then let it come, no matter what may be the consequences. Seward may stump the Northern States, or Mr. Van Buren may stump the Northern States, or Mr. states and state of New-York, the Anti-Masons in that section knowof New-York, the Anti-Masons in that section knowof New-York, the Anti-Masons in that section know-

At this moment it is dropping its eggs into the stream; from which issue grubs, provided with breathing tubes on each side of its body, and which are wonderfully adapted to the extraction of air from water. These grubs dig into the back of the stream; which they are born, and live on slime, beneath vater; till, putting on the fly state, they dart like parents, on the stream, in their turn to enjoy a pleasure for an instant.

Face Needs Sallons. We were informed a few days ago, that a vessel from Philadelphia arrived at this port within crew of free negro sallors, seven or eight in number. In a population like ours, it may safely be assessed that they are dangerous visitors. They are of marse, all of them, from the very nature of their position, abolitionists, and have the best opportunity to inculcate the slaver with their notions. More—they enjoy, ass allors, facilittee of aiding their escape to the North or other free soil.

We have turned to the laws of the State to see if they afforded no remedy in such cases. We regret to add that they do not. There are provisions stringent chough against free agrees generally; but surjously indeed, these sailors of that class are expressly excepted. See section 68, page 588, Revised Statutes. We hope the next Legislature will attend to this subject. It is a matter of large concern to all the seaports of the State, and in fact to the State generally. One remedy, strictly constitutional, would be to subject every vessel employing or importing such persons to a quaratine of twenty days, and that such part of the crew should not be permitted to come on shore under any pretence whatever. We would prefer a sharper remedy: that is, whenever such persons arrive at the wharf, it shall be the duty of the corporation officers to seize them and confine them in jail, until the vessel is ready to depart.

We are glad to learn that the Patrol of our city, which consists of energetic men have pretty well supplied the defect of the law. One instance has just come to our ears. A few days ago, they found a sailor of this description in the street using impertinent, if not seditious language, chastised him, jailed him, and when let out, chastised him again. The flogging was inflicted in both cases by s slave, and the witnesses assert that it was never better done. This may be Judge Lynch's Law, but we think it a very good one. Nor has the patrol stopped here. They have extended their services into the tribe of free negroes who have swarmed here from other sections and squatted in the perlieus of the city, and already have and now are in the act of abating much of that nuisance. The thanks of the public are due to them.

We repeat, that the next Legislature should take decided action on this subject; and we commend it especially to the members of this county. Wilmington Aurora.

VANDERLYN, THE PAINTER-AN INTERESTING INCI-DENT-WHAT TRIFLES MAKE MEN. When Aaion Burr was at the height of his power, and wearing the honors of the Republic, in journeying through the interior of New York, he was struck, one day at a tavern, with the singular spirit apparent in a little pen and its drawing that hung over the fire place in the back room. Upon inquiry he ascertained that this was the production of the landlord's son, an apprentice to a neighboring blacksmith. Colonel Burr expressed some curiosity to see the lad, who was accordingly sent for. His conversation and appearance gave evidence of innate genius and the expediency of sending him to the city, in order to furnish him with the rudiments of an education, was suggested. To this, however, the father demurted, suspecting from the interest which the traveller had expressed in the child's welfare, that he was really a more valuable member of his family than he had everbeen esteemed. Just hefore leaving the house, Colonel Burr said to he youth, in a low tone of voice, " Put a shirt in your pocket—come to New York, and inquire for Aaron Burr, he will take care of you," and immediately mounted his horse. Several months went by, and the circumstance we have related, passed from the mind of Col. Burr, when one morning a raw country boy was ushured into the breakfast room, who instantly pulled out a nicely rolled up package from his pocket and laid it on the table. Col. Burr opened t and was surprised to find it contained nothing but course cotton shirt, which, he was then reminded, he had desired should be brought him at the metropolis, from such a village. The bearer was young Vanderlyn, and from that day his better fortune commenced. Under the patronage of the Vice President of the United States, he was sent to Italy, where he completed his studies, and prepared himself for those greater labors, which have since given him a place in the first rank of our native artists.

A FREE STATE. We were cognizant of a little incident lately that puts in its true light the position of colored people in the so-called free States. An old man who had been for many years the slave of Mrs. Moore, of this county, but who is now free, and who has always borne a most excellent charactor, took it in his head some months ago to move to the free State of Ohio. Before his departure we had several conversations with old George on the subject, in which we tried to dissuade him from going. We told him that we were thoroughly acquainted with the situation of the negroes at the North; that in all but the name they were slaves, with the drawback that they had no masters bound to them by the laws of the place, and obliged to support them in sickness and old age; that they could not vote; that they could not enter into white society; that public opinion would not permit their following any employments but those of the most menial description—in fact we explained to George what we knew to be the true state of the case. He thought otherwise; said he wanted to buy a farm and live like " white folks:" that in fact he was determined to try Ohio, &c. We then told him that as he had his mind set on it he had better go, telling him at the same time that we had no doubt but that he would return in a short time, to end his days in seace and happiness in the old North State. Our prediction was verified sooner than we anticipated. George just touched on the free soil of Ohio, saw the degraded state of the people of his color on that free soil, turned on his heel and came back just as fast as he could, with the remark that he could not live there at all and that colored people are thought no more of in that country than dogs.

So much for that spurious philanthropy that can open its arms to a runaway slave—the property of a neighbor, but cannot treat with common humanity, the same class of men when they happen to be legal-Wadesborough (N. C.) Argus.
